

THE BETTER MAN BANK HOLIDAY RESET GUIDE

Getting Back on Track After Overdoing It

When to Use This: After any weekend, holiday, or event where you ate/drank more than planned

Live Coaching Session With this : <https://youtu.be/qgtZJ5ie9Pg>

THE REALITY CHECK

What Actually Happened:

- You ate more food than usual → temporary water retention
- You drank alcohol → dehydration and inflammation
- You consumed more carbs/sodium → water weight (NOT fat gain)
- You slept less → cortisol spike and hunger hormones elevated

What DIDN'T Happen:

- You didn't gain 5 pounds of actual fat
- You didn't destroy all your progress
- You didn't "ruin everything"
- Your metabolism didn't break

The Truth: It takes 3,500 calories ABOVE maintenance to gain 1 pound of fat. Even a heavy weekend rarely achieves that. What you're seeing on the scale is mostly water, inflammation, and undigested food.

THE 48-HOUR RESET PROTOCOL

MONDAY OR TUESDAY MORNING (6am -12pm) (Depending on a bank holiday)

HYDRATION PRIORITY:

- 500ml water immediately upon waking
- 250ml water every 90 minutes throughout the day
- Target: 3-4 liters total by bedtime

Why: Alcohol and excess sodium dehydrate you. Your body is holding water to compensate. Paradoxically, drinking MORE water helps you release retained water.

BREAKFAST - NO SKIPPING:

- 30-40g protein minimum
- Keep carbs low to moderate
- Include fiber (vegetables, oats, berries)

Examples:

- 3 scrambled eggs + 2 slices brown toast + tomatoes
- Greek yogurt (200g) + berries + apple
- Protein shake + oats

Why: Skipping meals signals stress to your body, slowing metabolism and increasing hunger later. Eating normally re-establishes your routine.

MORNING MOVEMENT:

- 20-30 minute walk (ideally outdoors)
- Light stretching or mobility work
- No intense training yet

Why: Gentle movement improves digestion, reduces inflammation, and helps regulate blood sugar without adding stress.

MIDDAY (12pm-5pm)

LUNCH - PROTEIN + VEGETABLES:

- Palm-sized protein portion
- 2 fists of vegetables

- Small portion complex carbs or avoid (optional)

Examples:

- Grilled chicken + large salad + sweet potato
- Tuna pasta with vegetables
- Turkey sandwich on 2 brown bread + side salad

Why: High protein and fiber keep you full while providing nutrients your body needs to recover.

AFTERNOON STEPS:

- Additional 1,000-2,000 steps
- Take stairs, park further away, walk during calls
- Break up sitting every 60-90 minutes

Target for Day: 10,000-12,000 steps total

Why: Extra movement burns excess glycogen stores and improves insulin sensitivity without requiring a workout.

AVOID:

-  Weighing yourself (wait until Thursday minimum)
-  Intense training (your body is still recovering)
-  Restrictive eating or "detox" plans
-  Comparing yourself to how you looked Friday

EVENING (5pm-10pm)

DINNER - NORMAL PORTION:

- Follow your usual meal structure
- Don't restrict or compensate
- Include protein, vegetables, moderate carbs

Examples:

- Salmon + broccoli + rice
- Chicken stir-fry with vegetables
- Lean mince + pasta + vegetables

Why: Your body needs fuel to recover and reset. Under-eating extends the recovery period.

EVENING ROUTINE:

- All screens off 60-90 minutes before bed
- Light stretching or reading
- Prepare for bed by 10pm
- Aim for 8+ hours sleep

Why: Sleep deprivation increases cortisol, ghrelin (hunger hormone), and cravings while decreasing leptin (satiety hormone). Quality sleep is THE most important reset factor.

BEDTIME CHECKLIST:

- Hit 3+ liters water today
 - 10,000+ steps completed
 - Ate 3 normal meals (no skipping)
 - In bed by 10:30pm latest

THE NEXT DAY (WEDNESDAY OR TUESDAY):

SOLIDIFY THE RESET

THE 24-48 HOUR MARK

CONTINUE:

- Normal eating (3-4 meals, adequate protein)
- High water intake (3+ liters)
- 10,000+ steps daily
- 8+ hours sleep

ADD BACK:

- Light training session (if you normally train Wednesday)
- Normal work routine
- Regular commitments

STILL AVOID:

- The scale (wait until Thursday)
- Compensating with restriction
- Dwelling on the weekend

WHAT YOU'LL NOTICE:

- Energy returning to normal
 - Less bloating and puffiness
 - Clearer thinking
 - Better digestion
 - Reduced cravings

THURSDAY: ASSESSMENT DAY

THE REALITY CHECK

NOW You Can Weigh Yourself: Most water weight will have cleared by Thursday morning (72 hours post-weekend).

Expected Outcome:

- 1-3 pounds above your normal weight (normal)
- This remaining weight is likely genuine food weight and minor water retention
- Will normalize within 1 week of consistent routine

If Weight Is Higher Than Expected:

- Don't panic or over-correct
 - Continue normal routine
 - Reassess in 7 days
 - Focus on habits, not numbers

THE RESET MINDSET

WHAT THIS IS:

- A return to your normal, sustainable routine
- A demonstration that consistency matters more than perfection
- Proof that one weekend doesn't destroy progress

WHAT THIS ISN'T:

- Punishment for enjoying yourself
- A detox, cleanse, or restriction protocol
- An excuse to beat yourself up

- A reason to start over "next Monday"

COMMON MISTAKES TO AVOID

MISTAKE 1: Skipping Meals to Compensate

- Creates binge-restrict cycle
- Slows metabolism
- Increases stress hormones
- Makes cravings worse

MISTAKE 2: Doing Excessive Cardio

- Adds stress to already stressed system
- Increases hunger significantly
- Often leads to overeating
- Doesn't actually "burn off" weekend calories

MISTAKE 3: Waiting Until "Next Monday"

- Turns 2-day indulgence into 7-day spiral
- Reinforces "all or nothing" thinking
- Delays progress by a full week
- Creates pattern of repeated failure

MISTAKE 4: Weighing Yourself Tuesday Morning

- Guarantees discouragement
- Water weight creates false picture
- Triggers restriction or giving up
- Serves no useful purpose

MISTAKE 5: Drastically Cutting Calories

- Signals famine to your body
 - Slows metabolism
 - Increases cortisol
 - Makes future weight loss harder

THE LONG-TERM PERSPECTIVE

ONE WEEKEND vs. ONE YEAR:

- 52 weekends per year
- If you reset properly after each, you still have 50 consistent weeks
- That's 96% consistency - more than enough for transformation
- Those who fail are those who let 1 weekend become 2 weeks

SUCCESSFUL PATTERN: Friday-Sunday: Enjoy yourself within reason Monday-Thursday: Reset and return to routine

Failing PATTERN: Friday-Sunday: Overdo it Monday-Thursday: "I'll start next week" Repeat for 52 weeks = Zero progress

FINAL TRUTH

You didn't fail because you enjoyed Easter/weekend/holiday.

You only fail if you:

1. Let one weekend become two weeks
2. Punish yourself with restriction
3. Give up because the scale is temporarily up
4. Wait until "next Monday" to restart

The reset is simple: Hydrate. Eat normally. Move. Sleep. Repeat for 48 hours.

That's it.

Better Men don't avoid enjoying life. They just know how to reset properly after.

YOUR BANK HOLIDAY RESET CHECKLIST

TUESDAY:

- 3-4 liters water
- 3 normal meals (no skipping)
- 30g+ protein each meal
- 10,000-12,000 steps
- 8+ hours sleep
- No scale, no restriction

WEDNESDAY:

- Continue Tuesday protocol
- Add back light training
- Normal routine resumed
- Stay off scale

THURSDAY:

- Morning weigh-in (optional)
 - Assess without judgment
 - Continue normal routine
 - Celebrate getting back on track
